Petty jealhave nothing to do with the Late in he afternoon Satur day the horses appeared. Order was How much more impressive it would have been with a band by whose stirring music the sires have reared their heads proudly and with that grace alone possessed by th equare in parade? The horse interests are germane with the business I terests of every citizen of Mexico. Stallion day is practically the first season of spring trade. Why would it not be well for the mer chants to co-operate with the horse iters from nearby cities and the coun try surrounding Mexico would be at ing as well as that of the great animals to be shown. That we sustain our reputation as a horse center is imperative. The wider we are advertised, the greater crowds we attract, and the more prominent the city becomes in the eyes of the outsiders fexico is one of the most flourishing cities in central Missouri. We are arriving. Our growth has been conservative. But a town or city is never too large to continue its other whether directly or indirectly. to help make Mexico a city and keep United we achieve and advance; divided we retrograde. The spirit of center of the world. The Ledger job the age demands we are ever active all of our people in extending a cot if we intend to continue in the van of progress. Resign from the Calamity crying anvil chorus and join the majority with their unified efforts that arepushing to the fore regard misunderstandings that may exist. Be what modern slang dubs a "Booster." smile when you mention Mexico and let the stranger know you are glad you are alive and one ofthe reason; is because Mexico is your balliwick When a stranger says anything about Mexico, grow as enthusiastic as ar embryotic parent who has interpret his hopeful's first inarticulate goo into papa and don't let up until you is duly impressed with the importance of our city and to unbounded If you don't like your neighbor, don't knock him. Leave the impression with every stranger that you are on the best of terms with every citizen and even though you are post tive, never lot him think we have any lemons.
